Tundra Wilderness Tour

Traveling 62 miles into Denali National Park to Stony Hill Overlook, the Tundra Wilderness Tour (TWT) offers a wonderful and diverse experience for park visitors. Incredible scenery, a narrated history and some of the best opportunities to view the park's wildlife in habitats await! While we can't promise or predict when wildlife will show, the Tundra Wilderness Tour allows plenty of opportunity to look for Dall sheep, moose, caribou, wolves and grizzly bears. On days when Denali (meaning "the high one" or "the great one") is visible, the tour bus travels to Stony Hill Overlook for an amazing view of Denali from base to summit. When your tour driver is able, he/she will take video footage of animals along Park Road and project these images onto drop-down video screens, featured only on their specially-designed tour buses. This way you can get a close-up look at the roadside action. At the end of the tour, you'll have the opportunity to purchase a "Tundra Wilderness Tour" DVD, which will feature some of the video footage shot from your tour! Since the DVD is created following your fabulous adventure; it will be mailed to your home.

If you don't need a full-day tour, but want an enriching experience, this is a great choice. The 4- to 5-hour tour, led by a driver/naturalist, takes you to Teklanika (Mi. 30) of the Park Road (private cars can't go past Mile 14). It begins at the Wilderness Access Center, where you'll see the award-winning film "Across Time and Tundra," which tells of the creation of Mt. McKinley National Park in 1924. Next, you'll climb Government Hill—look off to your left and you'll see an expansive view that includes part of the Yanert Valley. After Mile 3, you begin to enter the wilderness. This is taiga forest, and although no wildlife viewings are ever guaranteed— this is prime moose habitat. Watch for a flash of sun glinting off antlers, or moose nibbling fresh willow leaves along the road. You might also see foxes on this section of road, trotting along. Watch for caribou above treeline. The Great one, Mt. Denali, often comes into view at about Mile 9, weather permitting. At Mile 12, you'll visit Savage Cabin, the original cook's cabin in the Park's first tourist camp. At Mile 17, you'll see a presentation by an Athabascan Alaskan Native interpreter, sharing the story of Alaskan Natives in Denali, and how they survived in this harsh wilderness.
