INSIDE THE PRESIDENTS' CABINET

The Commander and Chief of All Cooking Shows

Why did President Kennedy erupt after the luncheon in the White House with Princess Grace and Prince Ranier? Did he call him Prince Reindeer to his face while dining? Why did Jefferson steal rice while in Italy despite being warned it was a capital offense punishable by death? How did Chef Marti get away with putting a needle into President Clinton's food when the US Secret Service went insane? Is it right the first Chef to the President was a black man named Hercules that Washington refused to set free? Who is the only proven lesbian First Lady and why was she angry about the spoons at one of her first State Dinners? Not only will you learn the truth, see many hidden histories, but you will get the recipes, and watch them being prepared on this unique and original "history-making" cooking show.

Former General Manager of the Camp David Resort and Conference Center and a Chef at the White House, Marti Mongiello, and his wife, Chef Stormy, Curator of The Presidential Culinary Museum, take us on this entertaining and informative trip through Presidential culinary history. In each show, they showcase dinnerware and artifacts from the US Presidential Culinary Museum - while entertaining the audience with anecdotes and background. In the show featuring President Washington, for instance, after telling the audience about Washington's historic chef, Hercules, Chef Marti goes into the kitchen and prepares two of Washington's favorites, Beefsteak Pie and Trifle with Homemade Custard. Marti then dispels the myths of the President's wooden teeth, the throwing of a silver dollar across the Potomac River and finally, the story of chopping down the cherry tree. He also explains the bookkeeping tricks engaged in to keep his chef a legal slave in the Quaker state of Pennsylvania. As the pie emerges from the oven and trifle escapes from the icebox, a young British Colonel Washington in redcoat, and wife, Martha enters in full regalia and sit down to partake of the freshly made goods. This was before he traded in for a blue coat.

With Chef Marti and Stormy's extensive background and association working with Presidents Bush, Obama, Clinton, and Trump in addition to the Presidential Culinary Museum, locations for each show already include places like Monticello, Montpelier, The Reagan Library, The George Bush Foundation and The Clinton Foundation Museum. Additional sites are available that make terrific sense.

The success of Inside the Presidents' Cabinet is guaranteed by Chef Marti, Stormy, and their team's impeccable reputation and ongoing association with a sponsorship pool that includes some of the largest and most recognizable brand names in the hospitality industry. Also, our country's renewed sense of patriotism, its insatiable interest in the personal lives of celebrities, and the unique and incomparable knowledge and private association with the material presented all combine to guarantee success. Marti's six books and a new book will accompany the premiere of this suggested series. Live shows on stage, an exclusive app with Presidential trivia and recipes will add to the launch.
