FARO CELARAIN ECOLOGICAL RESERVE

Located on the southern tip of the island, it is the most important Ecotourism Project of the Cozumel Foundation of Parks and Museums. The park encompasses an outstanding variety of natural landscapes. With an extension of more than one hundred acres, it is the combination of lagoon environment, with its coastal humid soil, and mangrove jungles, that are the setting of a mosaic of environments. The lagoons in this area are a natural refuge for a wide variety of flora and fauna of the region. The marine part of the reserve includes areas with white sand beaches and extraordinarily transparent waters.

CHANKANAAB PARK

One of nature's greatest treasures in Cozumel, designated as a National Park in 1980, it is an area dedicated to the protection of marine flora and fauna of the western coast of the Island of Cozumel. Chankanaab lagoon, whose meaning in Mayan language is "small sea", is a world-renowned ecosystem and natural aquarium. Ocean streams foster the growth of coral, as well as the development of large communities of fish, mollusks and crustaceans. Its survival depends mostly on the constant flow of water through amazing underwater caves. The Botanical Garden entices visitors to listen to the melody of the wind through the lilies and walk through a passage of orchids. It is the perfect place for bird watching and enjoying the dinosaur-like "iguana" lizards basking in the sun.

DEEP-SEA FISHING

Cozumel Island is in a prime location on the Caribbean for deep-sea fishing. Ten minutes from the docks, the ocean drops off to 1,400 ft, and most of your charter will be actual fishing time, not traveling time. The nutrient-rich currents in the channel feed many species of bait fish and give you the opportunity to enjoy the billfish season (white marlin, blue marlin and sailfish), as well as the tasty mahi-mahi and tuna, which are also abundant during this time. Because of the shallow mangrove bays at the north and south tips of the island, we also enjoy year-round fishing for grouper, snapper, barracuda, wahoo, kingfish, mackerel and shark, among others.

If you are on the island between May and October, be part of this amazing experience, as you walk through the beaches accompanied by a biologist, while experiencing the behavior of the marine turtle first hand.

BIRD WATCHING AT COZUMEL COUNTRY CLUB

Because of its strong commitment to an environmental program, in March 2006 Cozumel Country Club became the first golf course in Mexico to earn the designation of Certified Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary from Audubon International. To reach certification, a course must demonstrate that it maintains a high degree of environmental quality in a number of areas including Environmental Planning, Wildlife & Habitat Management, among others. As a result of this, the golf course offers a bird watching tour, led by a local biologist, where you can see native species, as well as migratory birds.
