Animas River

The headwaters of the Animas River are northeast of Silverton and the river flows into the San Juan River, which eventually leads to the Colorado River. The name "Durango" translates to "water town" in Basque and draws its name from the river that runs through town: El Rio de las Animas Perdidas (River of Lost Souls) or simply the "Animas River". The Animas River offers the expert Class V rapids (Upper Animas) and a playful Class I-III through town. Durango's Whitewater Park (Class III-IV) is an Official Olympic Training Course and the site of competitive white water events.

Durango State Fish Hatchery and Wildlife Museum

Built in 1893, the Durango Fish Hatchery raises four species of trout: native Colorado River Cutthroat, Snake River Cutthroat, Rainbow and Brown, and Kokanee Salmon. Each year, more than 1 million fish are raised at the hatchery and released into waters throughout Southwest Colorado. Stroll through the hatchery to view the ponds and raceways and feed the trout. Open every day, year around from 8 am to 4 pm.

Visit the Wildlife Museum and learn about the native animals of southwest Colorado. Open: May 15 - Sept. 15, 10 am to 4:30 pm, Mon-Sat; 11 am to 3 pm Sundays. The hatchery and museum are open free of charge. Group tours can be arranged by calling 970-247-0855 or 970-375-6766.

Walk the nature trail and learn more about Colorado's wildlife. The hatchery facility is also part of the Colorado Birding Trail, www.coloradobirdingtrail.com.

Fishing

Renowned as an outstanding fishery, the Animas River provides prime habitat for Brown and Rainbow Trout. The entire length of the river through Durango is accessible for fishing including a 2-mile stretch of Gold Medal Water fishing just south of downtown.

A Colorado fishing license is required for those 16 and older. Check fishing regulations for the local waters. Fishing and hunting licenses can be purchased at the Wildlife Office on the hatchery grounds, at local sports and grocery stores, or on-line at www.wildlife.state.co.us.
